THE IMMIGRATION RESTRICTION BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

After a Vigorous Political Debate_Discussion of the Fisheries Treaty by the enate_Final Vote To-Day_General resvenor Asks for Information About Columbus Postoffice .

Washington, August 21—Duscussion of the fisheries treaty occupied most of the time of the Senate yesterday. Mr. Morgan will close the debate in the morning hour to-day and it is expected that a vote will be taken before evening.

The resolution directing the Postmaster General to report next session the claims postmasters for services rendered between July 1864 and July 1874 was taken up and passed. WASHINGTON, August 21-Duscus

July 1864 and July 1874 was taken up and passed.

Mr. Morgan then took the floor and resumed his argument in favor the ratification of the fisheries treaty, and argued that inasmuch as under Democratic, policy up to 1861, the fisheries toninage had progressively increased, while from 1861 to 1883 it had progessively decreased, the constant reduction of the turiff in the first period mentioned accounted for the increase and that Republican methods under the tariff of 1871 and 1883 accounted for the decrease.

Senator Hear followed Mr. Morgan in opposition to the treaty. He denied that there was a proposition for retaliation on the Republican side, or that anybody had said the time for negotiation had passed, in any such sense as Senator Mogan had put upon it, or that any one on the Republican side admitted that the grievances of which American fishermen complained, could not occur again if the treaty were ratified. The opponents of the treaty proposed if Canada said American fishermen should not go into her ports with a catch should not go into her ports with a catch of fish to be transhipped to the United States, then no Canadian vessel should come into a port of the United States with a catch of fish which it proposed to sell. This was not retaliation.

Anis was not retailation.

Senator Evarts took up the articles of the treaty in détail to "express a general and pre-emptory condennation of them." The Senate, he said, was now asked to ratify a third feature of the said. pre-emptory condendation of the said, was now asked to ratify a third fishery treaty with Great Britain, which repealed neither of the two former treaties, and introduced a wider area and a multiplication of regulations instead of simplicity, regularity, peace, respect, and the ordinary conduct of affairs. The rejec-tion of the treaty, he contended in con-cluding, would be an opening to quiet and

Mr. Gray said that the administration had, endeavored to place the relation of the United States with Great Britain, on relations not only of friendship, but of justice to all It had endeavored to deal fairly, broadly and magnanimously. And when that attempt failed, the administration would know how to protect the honor and good name of the republic. He feared that there were some Senators figuring largely in the debate who were like the men of Ghent in the old song who trod on the tail of the lion of flanders when asleep. And when the lion growled at the gates of Ghent,

They bended low when they saw him awake, And said they had trod on his tail by mis-take."

party, while maintaining a right, the posi-tion of the United States toward Great Britain and all the world, did not propose to put this country in an attitude where it would be obliged to retreat or apologize, or say that it had trod on the lions tail by mistake. These who favored the treaty did not fear war.

Mr. Morgan, at half past five took the floor to make the closing speech in favor of ratification, and at six p. m. the Senate ad-journed, Mr. Morgan still having half an hour's time to close the debate to-day be-nected with them.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, introduced a resolution calling on the Postmaster General for information about alleged violation of the postal laws at Columbus. Ohio, in the sending out through the mails of an enor-mous edition of the Trade Reform Advocate without authority of law.

Mr. Townsend, of Illinois, moved to suspend the rules and pass the Senate bill providing for the detail of Army and Navy officers to educational colleges.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, and Mr. Blount,

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, and Mr. Blount, of Georgia, vigorously opposed the bill. The vote on the motion to suspend the rules was taken by the tellers, but within that time it was impossible to secure a quorum, and the bill was passed over for the present. The Chinese Immigration Restriction bill was then taken up.

Mr. Hitt, of Illinois, advocated the passage of the bill, and jurged the adoption of the Senate amendments to it, for without them the treaty could be largely evaded. Mr. Hitt criticized the Administration for not having entered into negotiation with of Chinese from British America to the United States.

Mr. McKenna, of California, replied to the speech made by Mr. Bynum, of Indiana last Saturday, in which he attacked the record of General Harrison.

Mr. Bynum, he said had been looking uprecords. The Democratic party he said, was addicted to fondling corpses. It liked the life that infested a dead thing; it shone by the light of decency and putreacence, and no party had claimed or received the charity of forgetfullness and forgivenness as had the Democratic party.

Mr. McKenna criticised the Democrats of the House in the Forty-ninth Congress for its lack of action upon the Chinese question, and the administration for delaying action on this question.

tion, and the administration for delaying action on this question.

Mr. Thompson, of California, in advocating the passage of the bill, criticized the Republican party for the lukewarm manner in which it dealt with the Chinese question, and complimented the President and Secretary Bayard for their successful effects, in securious treaty which would question, and complimented the President and Secretary Bayard for their successful efforts in securing a treaty which would prevent the immigration of Mongolians to the United States.

Mr. Vandever, of California, defended General Harrison from the charge of entertaining pro-Chinese sentiments. General Harrison, he said, was more opposed to Chinese immigration than Mr. Bynum.

Mr. Bynum of Indiana, replying to criticisms, declared that the Republican party had lived upon nothing but carrion for the last twenty-five years.

Mr. Hopkins of Illinois, suggested that it had been living off the Democratic party.

Mr. McCreary of Kentucky, closed the debate with a defense of the committee on foreign affairs from the charge of dilatoriness, and the bill was then passed without division, with the amendment providing that the repealing clause shall go into effect only upon the ratification of the pending treaty. The House then at 5:35 adjourned. Troubles of Missionaries in China.

WASHINGTON, August 21.—The State De partment has received a communication from United States Consul Seymour, at Canton, China, in which he says that many natives who have embraced the Christian religion have been severely per-secuted. Most of the victims are members of the American Baptist Union, which re-cently announced that no more consular aid will be requested, and that native members must seek redress from the Chimembers must seek redress from the Chinese authorities. The Consul says that the between China and this country is silent in regard to the prevention or cor rection of these persecutions.

Tariff Reduction Bills.

Washington, August 21.—Congressman Breckenridge, of Arkansas, introduced several tariff reduction bills in the House yesterday. They place cotton bagging, focai oil, and petroleum and cotton seed on the free list. One of the bills provide that distilled spirits containg fifty per cent of anhydrous aicohol shall pay ninety cents internal revenue per gallon; and that pleads containing 92 per cent of anhy-drous alcohol shall pay $1.30 per gatton; provided that no change of duty shall be construed to apply to what is known as English Interest in Our Election.

New York, August 21.—Mr. Robert T.

Lincoln was one of the passengers to arrive on the Cunard steamer Aurania, and as he stepped upon the dock in a light tweed suit, with his strong, broad face tanned by the breezes of the ocean, he looked a typical, st...dy American. Mr. Lincoln manifested much interest in the Presidential campaign, and asked the reporter who met him for the latest news, while denying that he had any himself. The story widely circulated in this country when Mr. Lincoln left for Europe to the effect that he had gone over on a special mission to see Mr. Blaine in connection with the then approaching Chicago Convention, he said, was an absurd fabrication, for during his whole stay on the other side, he did not meet Mr. Blaine. Mr. Lincoln said the English people were profoundly interested in the Presidential campaign now in progress here, and that the lack of knowledge on the subject which they and their newspapers displayed, was frequently amusing to a well posted American. He bad read the reports in the English papers of Mr. Blaine's arrival in New York and also of some of his subsequent specches.

"But I am not going to be interviewed," said Mr. Lincoln. "I merely went over for my own pleasure, have had a good time, a pleasant return passage, and am glad to be in America once again."

Mr. Lincoln presided at the concert given by the passengers of the Aurania on Saturday night, when Ignatius Donnely delivered a sneech, several people sang, and a couple of hundred dollars were raised for the benefit of the sailors' widows and orphans here and in Liverpool. and in Liverpool.

He reached the top of the range at about dark, and ratification, and at six p. m. the Senate adjourned, Mr. Morgan still having half an hour's time to close the debate to-day before the vote is taken.

THE HOUSE.

The House spent most of the day discussing the Chinese immigration restriction hill, which was finally passed.

Mr. Brickinridge, of Arkansas, introduced several resolutions to correct certain abuses arising under the present tariff laws, proposing to reduce the tariff on cotton bagging, cotton seed oil, coal oil, slephol and sugar.

He told of a conversation he had with an abandoned woman who acted as house-keeper for eight Hungarians. Those Hungarians, she said, never learn the English language, and herd together until they die or return to their native country. They never become Americanized. The universal opinion of American workingmen, said Mr. Powderly, is that men who work along the line of the Pennsylvania road—Hungarians and Italians, who are designated only by brass checks hung on their pantaloons—are not desirable American citizens. They bear no names and their checks are frequently changed cheat taem out of their wages. Germans, he found, took pride in learning the English language. Duel with Knives in a Dark Room.

Chicago, August 21.—Charles Anderson and Thomas Holderness fought a viccious duel with knives in a dark room. Holderness was getting the worst of the encounter. His left arm was nearly cut of and he had a long scalp wound on top of his head. One of Anderson's hands was frightfully cut.
